
THOMAS STROHMER, University of California, Davis

How sparsity can enrich wireless communications

We demonstrate how concepts from compressive sensing and random matrix theory can combat some challenging problems of next-generation wireless communication systems.